Supporters of democracy stand behind Reza Pahlavi as the coordinator of the political transition period

Supporters of democracy stand behind Reza Pahlavi as the coordinator of the political transition period

"Who wants to prevent YOU and ME from becoming 'US'?"

Who fears our unity?

Who benefits from division, silence and fear?

The answer is clear:

Those who fear the power of the people.

Those who rule through division.

Those whose existence is based on our separation.

And that is none other than the criminal and destructive regime of the Islamic Republic of Iran.

A regime that not only seeks to destroy the roots of freedom and humanity, but which, through pervasive corruption, systematic oppression and profound incompetence, has robbed several generations in Iran the chance for life, growth and hope.

If we have come to this common understanding today, there is no longer any room for silence or hesitation.

We can no longer stand on the sidelines.

For this regime is now in its weakest, most unstable and most isolated position in four decades.

And we are on the threshold of a historic decision.

But the danger has not yet been averted:

if we do not unite at this decisive moment,

if we do not translate our will into concrete action,

this rotten system will regroup.

No longer as a global threat,

but as a chronic wound in the body of the Iranian people.

At this fateful hour, our national and moral duty is clear:

We must become ONE voice, ONE will, ONE goal.

Let us put aside personal, partisan and ideological differences, but with awareness, courage and solidarity, let us pave the way to liberation.

This is our call to all who still believe in the light:

To those who place freedom above political calculation.

To those who seek Iran not in the past, but in a clear, just future.

Therefore, this is our clear proposal: supporting Reza Pahlavi.

With a clear view of the country's complex crisis, he has taken on the heavy responsibility of shaping the transition period.

He has presented a 100-day plan based on three unshakeable pillars:

- Guarantee of human rights
- Separation of religion and state
- Preservation of Iran's territorial integrity

This plan provides a modern, national and humane framework for a peaceful transition from the existing system.

Supporting it means rebuilding trust.

It means paving the way for a national transitional government whose sole legitimacy lies in the free will of the Iranian people.

A tomorrow in Iran could look like this:

- A dignified return of Iran to the international community
- Opening up of the economy and access to investment
- Conscious and free participation of the people in determining their own destiny
- Reconstruction of education, justice, social and environmental systems
- Revival of culture, art and free thinking in future generations
- Full equality for all citizens —

regardless of religion, denomination, ethnicity, gender or sexual orientation

A free Iran — for all Iranians.

In this process, democrats, intellectuals and civil society actors bear a great but honourable responsibility:

not just to be spectators — but to shape the future.

This is the moment of transition – from watching to acting.

It is time to stand up.

A free Iran will be the home of all its loyal children – of every language, every skin colour, every faith, every origin, every experience.

"So come along, dear friend...
for this shared pain
can never be healed if we remain divided."

Become part of the new wave of freedom and reconstruction in Iran by putting your name to it.

Statement of the Confederation of National Democracy-Oriented Iranians in full support of the publicised campaign of some republican and democratic forces in support of Prince Reza Pahlavi

In the Name of Iran – For Freedom and the Future

The Confederation of National Democrats of Iran, fully aware of the historical significance of this moment, declares its full support for the statement issued by a group of republicans and pro-democracy forces endorsing Prince Reza Pahlavi to help guide the country through the transitional period.

We firmly believe that a transition away from the Islamic Republic will not be possible without real and effective unity among those committed to democracy and secularism.

On this path, Prince Reza Pahlavi has shown that – not out of a desire for political power, but with a national, inclusive, and future-oriented approach – he can play a key role in facilitating such unity.

We believe that any delay, division, or inaction at this critical historical moment will only serve the survival of a regime that, for over four decades, has denied the Iranian people dignity, prosperity, and hope.

Now is the time to:

- unify our voices,
- turn our shared will into concrete action,
- and take a bold step toward a free, just, and humane future.

Iran's future does not lie in a lost past,
but in our unity today.

For a free, democratic, inclusive, and flourishing Iran.

With respect and hope,
Confederation of National Democrats of Iran
